Dear Sir,

They say a home should be a haven, and this is exactly what ours is- especially since we recently installed an Ultra Germicidal Air Probe Sanitizer. We are so satisfied that we think that it would be wonderful if every home had one installed.

Within two hours of installation, I became aware of air passing down my air passage-way, and reaching deep into my lungs. The only other time I experienced that sensation was when hooked up to oxygen in the hospital. I remarked to my husband, "I can breathe!" He was just about ready to make the same remark.

I have had multiple allergies since childhood so my home is indeed a haven, and it would seem that my immune system should grow stronger when relieved of so many burdens upon it.

My husband has a type of mold allergy that affects his skin- mostly the scalp. He has no lesions since the installation of the air probe sanitizer. Some had been pre-cancerous, and some tests as cancer after removal.

Since infection is a standard affliction when a person moves to Miami Valley, here in Ohio. Within a week ours have healed and no more early morning sneezing fits.

The odors have disappeared from our home- very noticeable relief in the basement area, and the mildew is fading from the relief in the basement area, and the mildew is fading from the shower grout in the bathroom. We also seem to notice less dust.

Yes it would be great if every home had one.
